

Imran Benson

Call: 2005

Overview

Imran is an experienced commercial litigator who is well known for a robust but charming style of advocacy alongside responsive and highly personable client service. He enjoys working closely with his clients to find the right strategy to achieve their commercial goals and to build the best possible case. He has a substantial practice in commercial disputes, professional negligence (including construction), insurance, costs and group actions. He is regularly instructed in hard-fought domestic and international business cases involving fraud, fiduciary duty, shareholder conflict, director misconduct, earn-outs, failed transactions, breach of contract and urgent interim relief. Much of that work grows naturally out of his professional negligence practice, which has long involved lawyers, accountants, auditors, IFAs, valuers and construction professionals involved in complex projects, accounts audits and litigation arising from transactional M&A and SPAs, property structures, failed investments, tax planning, and litigation gone wrong. He gives clear and straightforward advice even in the most complex and nuanced situations.

He acts for national, City and international firms, institutional clients and HNW individuals, and is regularly instructed as sole counsel against KCs. He is ranked in the legal directories for both professional negligence and costs, was nominated by Chambers and Partners and Legal 500 as Professional Negligence Junior of the Year for 2024, and featured in The Lawyer's Top 20 cases in 2024 and again in 2025.

He is happy to work on a CFA/DBA basis in the right case. He also accepts direct public access instructions from sophisticated non-lawyers. Directories describe Imran as "bright, very commercially minded in his approach, user friendly and a pleasure to work with", "gives clear advice and is extremely good on his feet. He's a joy to work with", "fabulous with clients and in court. He is very responsive in his advice and goes above and beyond to deliver results"

Recent work includes:

- Success for liquidators of an insolvent insurance company bringing a £10m breach of directors duties claim against the former CEO and FD

(Gable v Dewesall [2025] EWHC 3399, [2025] EWCA Civ 884). It involved multiple interim injunctions (WFOs, search orders, non-party disclosure orders) domestically and overseas.

- Successful defence at trial of valuers who valued a PBSA in Aberdeen at £16.5m which sold 10 years later for £4m (Skykomish v Gerald Eve [2025] EWHC 1031). The Judge commented on Imran's "skilful, highly detailed, forensic cross examination"
- An important appeal in the EAT about whether indemnity costs can be ordered by the ET and, also, the reasoning required for the summary amount of £20,000 to be allowed by the ET (Dowding v The Character Group [2024] EAT 153)
- Ongoing instruction by Mercedes/Herbert Smith Freehills Kramer in the NOx Emissions Litigation
- Numerous coverage arbitrations arising from professional indemnity schemes

Professional Liability

A substantial part of Imran's practice involves professional liability work focusing on lawyers, construction & property and financial professionals.

Lawyers

Imran's lawyer's liability practice is extensive. It typically includes: all kinds of property related disputes, fraud, litigation gone wrong and failed non-contentious transactions such as business sales, SPAs, tax avoidance, art purchases and wills claims. He spent several years acting in £multi-million group claims arising out of failed fractional ownership schemes (care homes, hotel rooms etc).. He has sued well-known KCs and sued and defended large City firms.

Construction & Property

Imran has considerable construction professional expertise, acting for and against architects, engineers, clerks of works, cladding specialists, QS and more. For example he was instructed in a 3 month c.£100m TCC trial commencing in October 2024 (which featured in The Lawyer's Top 20) on behalf of the excess insurer of an insolvent architects practice about a vast mixed use development. He often deals with cases where there is an overlap of construction negligence, insurance issues and sometimes fraud.

Imran has a deep knowledge of the property professional sector. He spent 3 years as a member of the RICS Conduct and Appeals Committee, which disciplines RICS members and has first-hand experience of supervising the management of a substantial central London commercial estate.

He has acted in cases involving all the leading London based international real estate firms. This typically involves alleged negligent valuations of development sites with large GDVs (£1m – £120m) or valuations of industrial, retail, residential, office and alternative properties such as casinos, hotels, utilities, student housing and data centres. He deals in related claims involving LPA Receivers and distressed sales. In April 2025 he successfully defended a large valuer's firm in connection with purpose built student accommodation valued at £16.5m.

His practice also includes complaints about advisory services and property management work. Post crash he was instructed in a range of high value and complex claims (£20m – £60m) concerning the valuation of City of London office blocks and the effectiveness of associated debt securitisation.

Finance

Imran's work relating to financial professionals covers auditors, accountants, actuaries, business sales brokers, IFAs, insolvency practitioners, tax advisors (including investment scheme promoters), pension professionals and insurance brokers and corporate advisors.

Recent cases have involved defending an accountancy firm in a £5m claim connected with an MBO and acting for a business brokerage in a £6m deferred consideration dispute. He has considerable experience in claims involving inappropriate advice and investments, pensions professionals, claims involving private equity, inadequate accounts reporting, failed tax avoidance schemes. He acts both for and against such professionals and is adept at reading financial statements. Many of these claims involve cross claims against other professionals – in respect of which he has broad and deep experience. He has been involved in litigation arising out of numerous failed tax schemes (film finance, landlords, R&D, EIS). He has dealt with many audit negligence cases – failure to spot fraud, failure to question substantial balance sheet items, failure to interrogate transactions with connected parties, failure to give warnings about going concern.

Costs

Imran has a busy contentious and non-contentious costs practice typically involving City firms. Recent instructions have come from firms such as Herbert Smith Freehills Kramer, Weightmans, Macfarlanes, Howard Kennedy, Crowell & Moring, Seladore. He is often instructed to help negotiate and formalise complex fee arrangements at an early stage of a claim where there is a delicate dance between clients/lawyers/funders or when a major problem has surfaced. He attacks or defends such arrangements where necessary.

In particular he has a deep expertise in costs issues associated with group litigation/competition claims. For instance he acts for Mercedes/Herbert Smith Freehills in the NOx litigation, where costs of more than £500m were claimed.

He has appeared in a number of significant costs cases including the leading case at the Court of Appeal on non-party costs orders in the context of small family businesses and a large number of appeals arising from the endless reforms to the costs parts of the CPR.

He has acted and continues to act for High Net Worth individuals, assisting them and their staff with resolving litigation gone wrong situations. He brings a practical and highly responsive attitude to such cases – happy to deal with WhatsApp calls on a moments notice.

Imran also regularly deals with detailed assessments/preliminary points/item-by-item challenges both inter-partes and solicitor/client in the SCCO or elsewhere. He occasionally sits at the SCCO as a Deputy Costs Judge and has vast familiarity with all these issues.

He accepts appointments as an assessor or delegate to deal with costs issues in heavy commercial arbitrations. His commercial and costs practice as a practitioner as well as his judicial experience, means he is focused on delivering fair and quick resolutions. This is normally on a fixed fee basis. He has written the chapter on Arbitration in the Butterworths Costs Encyclopedia.

Commercial Law

Imran has a broad, busy and substantial company and commercial disputes practice and regularly acts in insured D&O claims as well as in FSMA and securities litigation.

Typically this arises out of fraud, SPA disputes, failed domestic and international investments or general contractual or quasi-contractual disputes. He has acted for and against banks and financial institutions both large and small for many years.

By way of example:

- In 2024 he successfully acted for a group of Nigerian businesses alleged to be involved in money laundering. There were novel and untested issues under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 and a Voluntary Requirement (VREQ) under the Electronic Money Regulations 2011. Imran's strategy enabled dozens of businesses to each obtain the release of hundreds of thousands of pounds of their money which had been frozen for years.
- Between 2023 and 2026 he acted for successful liquidators of an insolvent insurance company bringing a £10m breach of directors duties claim against the former CEO and FD (Gable v Dewsall [2025] EWHC 3399, [2025] EWCA Civ 884). It involved multiple interim injunctions (WFOs, search orders, non-party disclosure orders) domestically and overseas.
- Van Zuylen v Whiston-Dew [2021] EWHC 2219 – 9 he was instructed in a commercial fraud claim involving offshore trusts, FSMA 2000, breach of trust, breach of fiduciary duty and deceit which was widely reported in the Times and Daily Mail.
- Successful application under the Cross Border Insolvency Regulations 2006 for recognition of a foreign representative of main proceeding.
- Cool Seas v Interfish [2018] EWHC 2038 – 17 day trial before Rose J (as she then was) concerning a s.994 petition and cross-petition with cross allegations of fraud relating to a £multi-million business. Sole counsel against KC and Junior.

- Many actions and applications for liquidators making recoveries from directors/shareholders and for D&O insurers looking to defend such claims.
- Many intra-partnership and shareholder disputes.
- Advising on FSMA securities claims where there is an overlap between auditor claims, D&O insurance issues and board dishonesty or silence.

Imran regularly obtains and resists a wide range of injunctions: domestic and international freezers, search orders and employee anti-poaching injunctions.

He has a deep interest in the art market and has worked on matters concerning auctioneers, art ownership, theft and damage claims.

Insurance

Imran regularly acts in insurance disputes concerning coverage and brokerage.

Recent work has included advising on aggregation rights arising out of innocent misselling of a fraudulent investment scheme. He regularly advises on and arbitrates over professional indemnity terms (most frequently SRA, CLC, ICAEW and RICS) and whether a claim is covered. He is pleased to do this for the whole market - for claimants, insureds, insurers and where there is dual cover or a dispute within a tower.

He regularly advises on coverage and carries out coverage interviews. He successfully defended QBE on a declinature decision in an accountant's case both at arbitration and on subsequent appeal to the Commercial Court. He has overturned arbitration coverage decisions on the basis of breach of natural justice. He successfully acted as sole counsel in a dishonesty coverage arbitration worth in excess of £20m where opponents were represented by 3 KCs and 4 juniors over the course of the case.

However, his insurance expertise is much broader. He has been involved in a number of fire/property damage claims, recovery claims and a full range of D&O disputes - especially involving fraud. He knows the importance of meticulous attention to detail and the need to take swift and robust action.

He has acted on disputes between broker and underwriter about commission, premium, validation and IPR. He has knowledge of (and indeed written a chapter on) Takaful (Islamic insurance). He acts in broker's negligence claims and is very familiar with the difficult tactical decisions to be made in such cases.

Arbitration and International

Imran has an arbitration practice involving both ad hoc and the commonly used rules. He has been to, amongst other places, Mauritius, the Middle-East and Channel Islands for professional reasons and is happy to travel where appropriate.

He accepts appointments as an assessor or delegate to deal with costs issues in heavy commercial arbitrations. His commercial and costs practice as a practitioner as well as his judicial experience, means he is focused on delivering fair and quick resolutions. This is normally on a fixed fee basis. He has written the chapter on Arbitration in the Butterworths Costs Encyclopedia.

Cyber and information technology

Imran often acts in claims involving crypto, cyber and technology matters. This relates to cyber fraud and hacking, failed IT upgrade and modernisations programmes. He is familiar with many of the technical and legal concepts which apply in this developing area. He has advised indemnity insurers about the consequences of data hacks at well-known legal services providers. He acts in crypto fraud cases and is very familiar with the technical concepts.

Group Litigation

Imran has acted in a large number of collective actions, for both claimants and defendants, sometimes in the context of a formal GLO and sometimes under other procedural regimes. He is an expert in navigating the complex dynamics which can arise, and the specialist issues to do with funding, pleading and proving the case. Recent instructions include both generations of the NOx litigation and mass investor claims in property schemes.
